School Ethos Statement

Our Ethos

Marldon Church of England School endeavours to be a positive element in the mission of the Anglican Church by contributing to the development of faith, bringing Christ's teaching to its pupils and fostering the application of Christian principles to the values of the secular society. The school endeavours to provide a secure environment within which full expression can be given to the spiritual, moral and emotional growth of pupils and where children can experience the complexities of maturing within a firm framework of Christian belief and practice. Our school recognises the equal worth of all pupils and we encourage the children to acquire a positive sense of their own identity and uniqueness. Equally, all are encouraged to develop a clear sense of personal responsibility for actions and consideration for others at all times. Pupils are encouraged to show respect for and tolerance of others. The Christian ethos, with the quality of the environment which it engenders, is greatly valued and this should be actively considered, planned and developed.

Marldon School is part of the United Schools Federation working alongside our partner schools, St Michael's Church of England Nursery and Primary School in Kingsteignton, St Catherine's Church of England Nursery and Primary School in Heathfield, St Mary's Church of England Primary School in Brixton and Ipplepen Primary School. Our schools work closely together in many ways which increases the opportunities that every child in the federation receives. The federation works very well and its strength is the links that have been made at all levels of the school. The schools work together under the banner of ...

"Aiming Higher... Achieving More... Together"

We ask parents to respect this ethos and its importance to the school community. This does not affect the right of all parents to apply and be considered for a place here.
